

Twenty yes-or-no questions. Answer honestly. Every "no" is a place your business is leaking leads, time, or revenue. Most service businesses score 8 to 12. Fix the "no" answers in order and the business gets calmer and more profitable at the same time.

Lead capture

- Every inquiry (calls, texts, DMS, web forms, walk-ins) lands in one list someone actually checks.
- A stranger could tell you exactly how many leads came in last week.
- Every new inquiry gets a response within one business day.
- Someone owns lead response, by name, not "whoever sees it first."

Follow-up

- Leads who do not book right away get a second touch within a week.
- Proposals and quotes have scheduled follow-up dates, not "when I remember."
- You have written templates for your most common emails and texts.
- Past customers hear from you at least twice a year without buying first.

Operations

- Your core service has a written checklist or procedure someone else could follow.
- Customer information lives somewhere the whole team can find it.
- The business can run for one full day without the owner touching it.
- New hires learn from documents, not just by shadowing.

Digital presence

- Your Google Business Profile is claimed, complete, and has recent reviews.
- Your website says who you serve, what you do, and what to do next within five seconds.
- You ask every happy customer for a review, the same way, every time.
- Someone searching your business name finds you, not just your competitors.

Money and retention

- You know which service makes you the most profit, not just the most revenue.
- Invoices go out on time and overdue ones get chased on a schedule.
- You ask satisfied clients for referrals with a specific script.
- Repeat business happens on purpose (reminders, check-ins, reorders), not by luck.
